

Dishili Young to lead Neel-Schaffer Louisiana Transportation/Civil Design Group

BATON ROUGE, La. (Aug. 25, 2017) – Neel-Schaffer, Inc., is pleased to announce that Dishili Young, PE, has joined the firm and will manage the company’s Louisiana transportation and civil design group.

Young has more than 15 years of experience. She will be based in the firm’s Baton Rouge office, which she will help manage while also providing transportation and civil design services to clients in Louisiana and throughout Neel-Schaffer’s nine-state footprint.

In addition to transportation design, Young has experience in program management, design-build, environmental assessments and impact statements, drainage design, bridge scour analysis, and hydraulics and hydrology.

“We are very pleased that Dishili has decided to join Neel-Schaffer,” said Jerry Trumps, Senior Vice President for Neel-Schaffer’s Southwest Region. “Her extensive experience and expertise will further enhance the strength of our firm and will be a valuable addition in providing these services to our clients.”

“I’ve worked with Dishili in the past on various projects and have always been impressed with her work ethic and professionalism in addition to her experience and expertise,” said Nick Ferlito, PE, PTOE, the Engineer Manager for Neel-Schaffer’s Baton Rouge office. “We are very excited that Dishili will be joining our firm to lead our transportation and civil design group.”

Young is a Registered Professional Engineer in Louisiana, Florida, and South Carolina. She holds a Bachelor of Science in civil engineering from Louisiana State University.
